Five Facts
You Might Not Know About UC Davis

1. UC Davis students are engaged. UC Davis does more than find solutions to the pressing concerns of our society — our students and researchers actively engage our local and global communities through community partnerships, such as the Taller Arte del Nuevo Amanecer (TANA) youth art center in Woodland and our telemedicine program, which provides medical care to small communities and links hundreds of tribal clinics, rural hospitals, and teaching hospitals.

2. Transfer housing is guaranteed. A year of housing or assistance finding a place to live is guaranteed to all incoming transfer students who submit their Statement of Intent to Register on time. Residence-hall accommodations will be offered to single transfer students under the age of 24. Single transfer students 24 and over will be offered a space in a single student apartment.

3. Research is the norm, not the exception. More than half of UC Davis undergraduates work on research projects with faculty members. The Davis Honors Challenge program includes a research seminar that fosters team building, collaborative decision making and strategic problem solving. The Undergraduate Research Center facilitates research opportunities for students.

4. Going green starts with the students. UC Davis’s commitment to the environment and sustainability is reflected in a number of national rankings that put us in the top group of green universities. UC Davis students are defining sustainability in broad terms, through energy-efficient lighting projects, research into sustainable transportation, and by recycling or composting waste throughout campus.

5. UC Davis is a wise investment. UC Davis is a top-50 and top-100 “Best Value” university, according to Kiplinger’s Personal Finance magazine and the Princeton Review.
