Five Facts
You Might Not Know About UC San Diego

1. UCSD’s unique six-college system offers support services for commuter students at each of the college neighborhoods. These include lounges for relaxing or studying, academic advisers and access to information on transportation, careers, child care, veterans’ affairs and everything you need to succeed. ACTA, the student-led All-Campus Transfer Association, creates social opportunities to meet your fellow students.

2. Transfer student housing on campus. The Village at Torrey Pines is UCSD’s newest housing community, just for transfer students. The Village has ocean-view rooms, a satellite bookstore, a cafe and conference facilities. Phase II is scheduled to open fall 2011.

3. UC San Diego’s academic excellence is built on the strength of our faculty. They are responsible for groundbreaking research discoveries in every department, recipients of the highest honors, and the most cited in international publications. Currently, seven Nobel Laureates teach and conduct research; there are 17 in UCSD’s 50-year history.

4. Internships, exchange programs and study abroad programs are for transfer students, too. The International Center and Career Services Center on campus can match students with programs that fit their schedules and majors.

5. UC San Diego’s dedication to sustainability is evident. We focus our considerable interdisciplinary resources on the major issue of our time through Environment and Sustainability Initiatives. How big an impact are our efforts having? The far-reaching energy program will produce 29 million kilowatt hours per year — enough to power 4,500 homes.
