Oops! I missed the December 1 deadline for applying for the spring semester!
--Important Information for Students—

Can I still register for spring classes?
Yes, but your registration period is limited to Monday, January 9 through Thursday, January 19, 2012. There will be very few, if any, classes with available seats by that time. We encourage you to postpone your registration until the Fall 2012 semester.

Can I crash classes the first week of instruction?
Yes, but the number of available seats will be very limited, and add codes will be given first to students who are on the wait-list for the class. Depending on “crashed” classes to fill your academic schedule is a very bad strategy. You will likely end up with units that do not meet degree, graduation or transfer requirements and, in effect; you will be wasting valuable time and energy. We encourage you to postpone your registration until the Fall 2012 semester.

Can I still get Financial Aid for the spring semester?
You can still apply for Financial Aid, but because the processing time for applications can be up to eight weeks (two months) long, you will not receive any Financial Aid until late March at the earliest, over half-way through the semester. Until then, you will be responsible for all your educational expenses – enrollment fees, books, supplies, transportation and so forth (no deferments are available). We encourage you to postpone your registration until the next semester.

Can I still be assessed for English or Math courses?
No. At this late date, you will not be able to take the English or Math assessment test prior to the beginning of the spring semester. Unless you have a transcript from another college that shows that you’ve successfully completed Math or English courses elsewhere, you will only be able to register for the lowest level of Math or English, and only if there are seats available this late in the registration period.

Will there be a college orientation I can attend?
No. All the orientation sessions are now closed. Orientations will be available later in the spring semester for students who will begin their coursework with City College in the Fall 2012 semester (see orientation dates below).

Can I see a counselor to decide which courses to take?
No. Before classes begin, first-time students only see a counselor as part of orientation, and all orientations for the spring semester are now closed.

What should I do now??
We strongly encourage you to postpone your registration until the Fall 2012 semester so that you have the best selection of classes and so that you can take advantage of the full array of support services (orientation, assessment, counseling, financial aid workshops, etc.) that help you get ready for a successful semester.

Rushing to enroll in spring classes at the last minute, and without financial assistance being readily available to you at time of registration or by the first day of classes, may jeopardize successful completion of your educational goals. We at City College want you to succeed with your education and are willing to assist you with successful matriculation and enrollment into the Fall 2012 semester.

To get ready for the Fall 2012 semester, please sign up for the following to get started:

Sign up for a Counseling Orientation: Tuesday, February 7, 2012 and Wednesday, February 8, 2012 (Ask to sign up now, here at the Informational canopy, located on top of the D Building, in front of the Transfer Center, to get started)!

Sign up for Assessments in Math, English and ESOL: Tuesday, February 7, 2012 and Wednesday, February 8, 2012 (Ask to sign up now, here at the Informational canopy, located on top of the D Building, in front of the Transfer Center, to get started)!

Start Early! Financial Aid Assistance steps:

Step One: Apply for Financial Aid now for the upcoming semester:
Complete the FAFSA Online:
www.fafsa.gov
Complete the Board of Governors Waiver (BOG-W):
https://studentweb.sdccd.edu/e-bogw/

Step Two: Attend a financial aid application and information workshop if you need assistance completing the FAFSA application: Tuesday, February 7, 2012 and Wednesday, February 8, 2012 (Ask to sign up now, here at the Informational canopy, located on top of the D Building, in front of the Transfer Center, to get started)!